NUMBER 297

It is reported that the President will come out in Fitz John Porter's favor. All the 306 seem to be heading that way.

The Wisconsin Senate, on Washington's birthday, refused to pass the bill creating the county of Garfield. The vote stood 18 yeas and 6 nays.

Soon after 100 guns were ordered fired by Governor Rusk on Washington's birthday the Assembly met, and at once a war of words began between Assemblymen Keyes and Price, and a dispatch from Madison to the Milwaukee Sentinel gives the following particulars about it: "There was a lively tilt between Keyes and Price in the Assembly to-day, when the Lewiston levee bill was under consideration. Winans, of Janesville, who has taken deep interest in the bill, was absent, and Keyes and Price quarrelled over how he (Winans) would vote if present. Keyes claimed he absolutely knew Winans would vote for it in its present form. Price said he had positive assurance to the contrary, but as it was a question of veracity, he was willing to stake his reputation for honesty against that of Keyes, and not fear the result. Price then referred to a private conversation previously had with Keyes and charged Keyes with playing double. Keyes retorted by saying that it was a violation of parliamentary law and rules of common decency to publicly misrepresent private conversations. Price shouted back contemptuously that he would rather violate the laws of common decency than violate the laws of common honesty. The discussion became heated and the excitement ran high at one time, when it was feared it would end in a personal encounter."

The Inter Ocean in its issue of February 22 compliments Congressman Williams in this fashion in regard to what he has done in Congress to restore to the Japanese government the indemnity fund: "Congressman Williams of Wisconsin has succeeded in securing the passage of a bill to restore to the Japanese Government the surplus of indemnity paid to the United States seventeen or eighteen years ago. It was little better than 'stealing to keep this money so long, and the United States, which we proudly believe represents the highest type of civilization on the globe, has furnished a very poor example of national honor to the heathen that sit in darkness patiently await the return of the money of which they were unjustly deprived."

The bill, the passage of which Mr. Williams has secured in the House of Representatives, provides for the restoration to Japan of about $1,500,000 which was never covered into the Treasury and has been held for sixteen years in trust by the department of State. It was money received as the result of an international piracy, and the ransom of a city, which a friendly power paid to save a town from being sacked by the overwhelming force of seamen brought against it by confederated powers in whose name the expedition was sent out. This matter was dragged along through six Congresses. Bills for the return of the money had several times been passed by the two Houses, but never concurrently. In the last hours of the Forty-sixth Congress it passed the Senate by a vote of 46 to 6, and its passage was recommended in the House in a unanimous report presented by Mr. Cox. It is understood that President Arthur is very anxious that the Congress should finally take concurrent action on this subject and as far as possible make restitution to Japan for an unwarranted and unprovoked outrage.

The Home of Mark Twain.

In a letter from Hartford, Ct., to the Burlington (Iowa) Hawkeye, Mr. R. J. Burdette writes: "I think I have never been in a home more beautifully homelike than this palace of the king of humorists. The surroundings of the house are beautiful, and its quaint architecture, broad East Indian porticoes, the Greek patterns in mosaic in the black red brick walls attract and charm the attention and good taste of the passer-by, for the home, inside and out, is the perfection of exquisite taste and harmony. But with all its architectural beauty and originality, the elegance of its interior finish and decorations, the greatest charm about the house is the atmosphere of 'homeliness' that pervades it. Charmingly as he can entertain thousands of people at a time from the platform, Mr. Clemens is even a more perfect entertainer in his home. The brightness and best sides of his nature shine out at his fireside. The humor and drollery that sparkle in his conversation is as utterly unaffected and natural as sunlight. Indeed, I don't believe he knows or thinks that most of his talk before the sparkling fire, up in the pleasant retirement of his billiard room study, is marketable merchandise worth so much a page to the publishers, but it is, and it is not all drollery and humor. He is so earnest that his earnestness charms you fully as much as his brighter flashes, and once in a while there is in his voice an infection of wonderful pathos, so touched with earnestness that you look into the kind, earnest eyes to see what thought has touched his voice. And he has a heart as big as his body; I believe there does not live a man more thoroughly unselfish and self-forgetful. Two little girls and a boy, bright-eyed, good tempered, and with a full head of hair as brown as his father's, assist Mrs. Clemens to fill the heart of the reigning humorist, and they do it most completely. Personally, Mr. Clemens is, perhaps, a little above the medium height, of good symmetrical physique, brown hair, scarcely touched with gray, that curls over a high, white forehead; friendship in his eyes, hearty cordiality in the grasp of a well shaped white hand, strong enough and heavy enough to be a manly hand; his age is forty something, and he looks thirty-five; in the evening after the lamps are lighted, his face has a boyish look, and he loves a good cigar even better than Grant."

THE LEGISLATURE.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, Feb. 22.—In the Assembly this morning a resolution was adopted appointing Messrs. Kidd, Stanley and Pierce as a legislative committee on the inspection of illuminating oils.

A motion was made to suspend the rules and consider the Fox river overflow which was rejected amid applause by the enemies of the bill.

SENATE.

In Senate bill appropriating $2,000 to the Governor's contingent fund bill, and fixing first biennial session of Legislature in 1884, came up and were discussed at length. An amendment to make date of meeting 1883, was voted down, and was recommended to committee on State affairs.

MADISON, Feb. 22.—A very lively debate was held in the Assembly to-day over the Lewiston levee bill. Mr. Price claimed that it gave the commissioners power to enter upon lands for condemnation purposes without providing compensation for damages, and that it was also unconstitutional because it is a work of international improvement, which the Legislature is prohibited from engaging in. Mr. Pierce answered that railroads, harbors, and canals were works of internal improvement, but this proposed levee was to prevent the destruction of property and life by an overflow of the Wisconsin. The discussion culminated in a bitter contest between Messrs. Keyes and Price over trivial matters. Keyes accused Price of violating parliamentary law and common decency by publicly misrepresenting a private conversation as to how a certain member would vote on the levee bill. Price retorted by saying he would rather violate the laws of decency than the laws of honesty, and if it was merely a question of veracity between him and Keyes, he was not afraid of the result. There was great excitement and fears were entertained that the hot words would be followed by blows. The opponents of the bill resorted to every species of filibustering, but the levee men ordered the bill to a third reading by a decisive vote.

The bill appropriating $7,000 to the Fish Commissioners was ordered to a third reading in the Senate to-day after an hour's debate. Mr. Finkelnburg advocated abolishing the Milwaukee hatchery and the sale of the Madison hatchery. He referred to the serious charge against the commission that 2,000,000 spawns were taken from a lake in Columbia county and sold to Kentucky parties without authority by law. The amendment to cut the appropriation down to $4,000 was defeated.

Governor Rusk has appointed C. M. Butt, of Viroqua county, agent of State for distributing the $78,000 in payment of the claims of Air Line railroad laborers. Judge Butt accepted the appointment, and went north from here to-night.

The bill to lop off certain towns from Chippewa county and create the county of Garfield was killed in the Assembly to-day.

OBITUARY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Mrs. Gould Hoyt died suddenly this morning at her residence, No. 45 West Seventeenth street. Mrs. Hoyt was the fourth daughter of General Winfield Scott, and occupied a prominent position in social circles. She had taken landum for the relief of pain, and it is believed had been suffering with some organic disease upon which the poison acted with fatal result.

COUNTY OF GARFIELD.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 22.—The bill to organize the county of Garfield was today indefinitely postponed in the Senate by the following vote: Yeas—Senators Burrows, Chase, Colman, Crosby, Ellis, Finkelnburg, Hamilton, Hill, Kingston, Kusel, Palmer, Phillips, Randall, Richardson, Ryland, Scott, Simpson, Smith—18. Nays—Senators Ackley, Bennett, Delaney, Hunt, Pingel and Wing—6.

WILL MORTON GO?

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—An ex-United States Senator, in commenting upon the Morton guano contract, said to-day: I do not see how it will be possible for Mr. Morton to retain his position as minister for the guano contract is a matter compared with which the Emma Mine scandal will prove to be insignificant. It surely must attract the attention of Congress. Morton is a dull, commercial sort of man, and doubtless does not know he committed an indiscretion. There is a very noticeable desire expressed by Mr. Evans' friends that it shall not appear that he had any connection with the preliminary negotiations to this contract, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Blaine rejected the proposition made by President Grey, through Morton, that the United States should form an alliance with France for the benefit of the companies which controlled the guano.

ANTI-POLYGAMY.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 22.—A very large and earnest audience assembled in Plymouth church to-night to take action on the Mormon question. The principal speakers were United States District Attorney G. W. Hazelton, General Harrison C. Hobart, and the Rev. J. N. Freeman. Strong resolutions calling upon Congress to at once remove the evil were passed.

Incredible.

F. A. Scratch, druggist, Rathven, Ont., writes: "I have the greatest confidence in your BUCKING BLOOD BITTERS. In one case with which I am personally acquainted, their success was almost incredible. One lady told me that half a bottle did her more good than hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine she had previously taken." Price $1.00, trial size 50 cents.

BIG SNOW DRIFTS.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 22.—Advices from Ashland and other northern points on the Wisconsin Central Railroad to-day state that the heaviest snowstorm of the season visited that place last night. Snow fell to the depth of eighteen inches on the level, and drifted on the tracks in piles measuring fully ten feet high, completely blocking trains. None of the other roads suffered.

INTEREST OF MORALITY.

MADISON, February 22.—The Humane Society gained quite a victory in the Assembly this morning in the passage of the bill relating to offences against chastity, morality and decency, and which provides that any man who shall commit fornication with a female under the age of fifteen years, shall be punished by imprisonment in the State prison for a term not longer than eight years, nor less than four, and provided also for a penalty of imprisonment for committing fornication with any single woman. The bill will pass the Senate by a unanimous vote as it did the Assembly.

"BLAINE AND BROWN."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The attention of Senator Brown, of Georgia, was today called to the statements going the rounds that a possible Presidential ticket of Blaine and Brown would loom up in the next campaign. "Some time ago," said Senator Brown, "I wrote a letter in which I said that I would vote for the next Democratic nominee for Governor of Georgia, and for the next Democratic Presidential nominee. Mr. Blaine could hardly be a Democratic nominee for President, and upon what I have announced as my intention, I could neither be on the same ticket with him nor vote for him. I stand by what I have already declared as my intention. There is no necessity whatever, in my opinion, for going outside the Democratic party for candidates. The party should be of itself—alone." In reply to a question as to the liberal movement in Georgia, Mr. Brown said that he never thought it could accomplish anything, and that it was further crippled by the fact that the Republicans of the State are diligently fighting each other in factions.

Emerald Grove.

—George F. Tuttle, of Clinton, teacher in the upper room, at his own desire, was released by the district board from teaching the remaining three weeks of the term, having found a substitute. He resigned in order to secure a good business opening in Lake county, Dakota, where he has 320 acres of land. He has proved himself a good teacher, and a worthy young man in all respects.

—The Dakota fever is raging here now to a greater extent than ever. Areal King and family will soon leave. C. Holton and wife will probably accompany them, and a number of others are talking of going.

—C. H. Stoller has lately purchased for a Milwaukee firm a number of heavy horses, averaging 1400 or 1500 pounds. Price about $250.

—The Congregational Sunday school is doing finely under the lead of Loren Cheney, superintendent.

—The literary circle meets this week, at E. Loyd's, and will discuss Tennyson's "Idylls of the King."

—Reverend meetings were held on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of last week, and a good degree of interest manifested.

—Quite a sum of money has been raised for the relief of Mrs. C. D. Matthews—about $70. George Beesly has been quite active in getting subscriptions, and is entitled to much credit for his exertions.

—Superintendent Jones visited our public schools on Monday last.

—Mrs. J. W. Dean and Mrs. John Beesly returned from their visit to England on Saturday last. Two disconsolate widowers rejoice, and two homes made happy. They have been gone about three months.

—Richard Jones, only surviving son of Henry Jones, has been sick now a week, with the typhoid fever. He is yet very ill, but his friends feel hopeful. Libbie Jones is very much reduced, yet it is hoped she will recover.

—Dr. Chittenden is now, and has been for some time, a daily visitor to the Grove.

—The second quarterly conference of the M. E. church, of Emerald Grove and Fairfield will be held on Saturday March 4th. Sacramental services on the Sunday following. In Emerald Grove at 10:30 a. m., and at Fairfield 2 p. m.

COUNTERFEITER.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 22.—Sam. J. Whittaker the fellow who was confined nearly two years in the county jail charged with attempting to outrage the person of a Polish woman, was brought to this city at an early hour yesterday morning by detectives. Whittaker was captured near Green Bay, and is charged with making and circulating counterfeit coin. It is said that much of the coin manufactured by him is in circulation throughout the Northwest.

—Visiting—Hired Girls.

Once on a time I went to spend the afternoon with neighbor friend, and my visit turned out nothing but apologies, with now and then something said between. She said she had put off baking on account of some sewing she wanted to finish, and thought she would bake in the afternoon. She had to chase the hens and scratch the barn to get some eggs to bake a cake, as the day before she had sent all she had to market. And then all her wood was out-drawn in the rain and snow, and was slow to burn; consequently the cake got sad before it was baked. Her knives and forks she had laid aside in the morning; they then had to be secured, and then as soon as it got a little dusk she thought of her lamp, which had to take its share, etc. But, farmer sisters, here let me say that if ever I am found in such a fix, I will make the best of it, and let visitors eat the same as I do, and try to visit one-half the time any way. I think the better way is to do all necessary work in the morning, and let sewing go until after noon, as nine-tenths of the visiting people would rather have their chat and partake of a cup of good, hot coffee, and plain bread and butter, than to have nick-nacks.

I always have thought that housewives needed help just as much as the men, and think so yet. Let a man get in a hurry and his first thought is, hire a man to help him out, and it is all right. And how many are the times that his worked-down wife is hurried and worried and no help ever thought of for her; and if she should speak of hiring a girl at two dollars, or one, and a half a week, the man will say, "This girl business counts up like Sam Hill." All this time he keeps his man week in and week out, costing him from five to six dollars a week, and only works from sun until ten at night.—Gemma Bedot.

PEOPLE who take law into their own hands generally deal out humanity—not law—and often materially aid the ends of justice. Robert Smith, a North Carolina farmer who had been annoyed by thieves, shot and killed a man who came upon his place. The intruder proved to be an honest stranger, with no intent to steal. Smith was convicted of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged. His neighbors sympathized with him, and failing to get executive clemency, forcibly released him from jail, and sent him secretly out of the State.

Ostrich Hunting in Patagonia.

"Choo! choo! Plata!" I cry to the dog who followed at my horse's heels, as a fine male ostrich scudded away toward the hills we had just left with the speed of lightning. * * * But the ostrich suddenly doubles to the left, and commences a hurried descent. The cause is soon explained, for in the direction toward which he has been making in his path, and smoke rises menacingly from the hill, and he has found that he had been barked off by the hills, the great bird is forced to alter his course and make away to the plain below. But swiftly as he flies along, so does Plata, who finds a down hill race much more suited to his splendid shoulders and rare stride. Foot by foot he lessens the distance that separates them from his prey, and gets nearer and nearer to the fast sinking, scurrying bird. Away we go, holter skelter down the hill. * * * Plata is alongside the ostrich, and gathers himself for a spring at the bird's throat. "Ho! ho! ho!" he has him! I shouted to Gregory, who does not reply, but urges his horse on with whip and spur. "Ho! ho! ho! get him, though!" Yes—no—the ostrich, with a rapid twist, has shot some thirty yards ahead of his enemy, and whirling around, makes for the hills once more. And now begins the struggle for victory. The ostrich has decidedly the best of it, for Plata, though he struggles gamely, does not like the up-hill work, and at every stride loses ground. * * * "Can he stay?" I cry to Gregory, who smiles and nods his head. "He is right, the dog can stay," for hardly have the words left my lips when, with a tremendous effort, he puts on a spurt and races up alongside the ostrich. Once more the birds point for the plain, he is beginning to falter, but he is great and strong and is not beaten yet. * * * Unconscious of anything but the exciting chase before me, I am suddenly disengaged by the fact that there is such a thing as caution, and necessity to look where you are going to, for putting his foot in an unusually deep tuca-tuca hole, my little horse comes down with a crash upon his head, and turns completely over on his back, crying me beneath him in a hopeless muddle. Fortunately, beyond a shaking, I am unhurt, and remaining, endeavor to regain the somewhat distant chase. The ostrich, Gregory, and the dog have reached the plain, and as I gallop quickly down the hill, I can see that the bird has begun doubling. This is a sure sign of fatigue, and shows that the ostrich's strength is beginning to fail him. * * * Away across the plain the two animals fly, while I and Gregory press eagerly in their wake. * * * Suddenly the stride of the bird grows slower, his doublets become more frequent, showers of feathers fly in every direction as Plata seizes him by the tail, which comes away in his mouth. In another moment the dog has him by the throat, and for a few minutes nothing can be distinguished but a gray struggling heap.—Across Patagonia, Lady Dixie.

Sacred.

Wordsworth, in his "Ode to Duty," prays,

"Give unto me, God, a daily wise."

An incident occurred in a boys' school, some years ago, which illustrates the spirit of the self-sacrifice which the poet craved.

One day, there landed in New York a number of German immigrants in great destitution. The principal of the school called the boys together. Reading to them from a newspaper a statement of the emigrants' distress, he asked whether they would give something to relieve the poor Germans.

Instantly there were vociferous offers. "I'll give two dollars," "I'll give one," "I'll give three," cried out the excited boys, until a large sum was subscribed. But all the boys together had only enough pocket money to pay a small part of the amount.

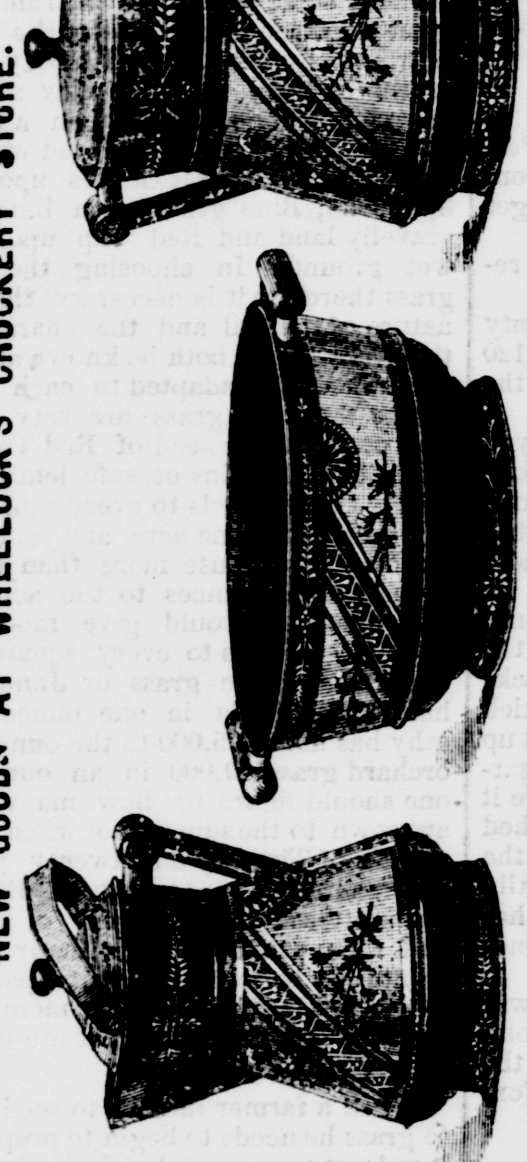

The principal said to them that undoubtedly their parents would pay the sums named if made an item of charge in the school bills. But what he wanted to know was whether they would give their own dues, without calling upon their parents.

"Are you willing to give these poor creatures your dinner?" he asked.

The boys assenting, it was decided to select two of the most expensive dinners, to make their own meal on bread and molasses, and to give the difference in cost to the destitute emigrants. As the school was a large one, this difference was represented by a sum of money which greatly relieved the sufferers.

But the boys were also benefited. They were taught a lesson in self-denial, and he that giveth best who giveth that which cost him something.

THERE are about 500 vendors of sawdust in New York City, having a capital of about $200,000 invested in and doing a business amounting to more than $2,000,000 annually.

PERSONAL AND LITERARY.

—When Jenny Lind was once told that some persons had paid twenty-eight dollars to hear her sing, "What fools!" she said.

—Crouch, the author of "Kathleen Mavourneen," and many other popular songs, is now a cabinet-maker in Baltimore, and has been there for years.

—Viscount Hemsley, member of Parliament for Yorkshire, who died in London the other day, was only twenty-nine years old, and was probably the most gifted parliamentarian of his age in England.

—In dress Attorney-General Brewster is very eccentric. He wears ruffles of the style of seventy-five years ago. His coat is blue swallow-tail, with brass buttons, and his waistcoat is long and made of bright buff cloth.

—"We seldom see Shillaber in Boston now," the correspondent of the Hartford Courant writes, referring to Mrs. Partington; "his old enemy, the gout, keeps him housed in Chelsea, where he writes as industriously as ever."

—In spite of her many cares and sorrows, Mrs. Myra Clark Jones is still as bright and lively as a girl of sixteen. Though she has been fighting for her rights for the last forty-six years, her light, ringing laugh has lost none of its freshness. Her confidence in ultimate success is still unshaken.

—Minister Yoshida and his retiring suite exhibited a touching bit of courtesy on their departure from Washington the other day. As each passed the silver star which marks the spot in the railway station where Garfield fell, he paused, uncovered his head, and bowed low.

A Washington paper says that on a winter night, when the snow was driving, and a poor Irish woman was struggling along the icy pavement with a heavy bundle in her arms, Senator Frelinghuysen came out of his house on his way to a state dinner, and with courtesy invited her to take his carriage and tell the driver where to take her.

—Some of the books gathered into a noble library by the late Earl of Crawford, whose remains were stolen nearly a month ago from the Balcarras tomb, possess large value and perennial interest for the bibliophile. One is the "Catholicon," printed on vellum, in 1460, by Gutenberg, and the only known book from the immortal printer's second press; another is the renowned Mazarin Bible, first of type-printed books, and as many hold, the best printed of all books; still another, the "Cicero de Officiis," of 1465, the first printed classic; another, the block book specimen, on which the Dutch have founded their claim to priority in the invention of printing; and again, a large collection of the romances of chivalry, including the Arthurian and the Carolingian, nearly all of them being first editions.

HUMOROUS.

A Brooklyn man calls his wife Conscience, because, as he remarks pathetically, "She makes words of us all."

—"Cheese it," said the rat to the trap. "I will," said the trap, "and with baited breath I will await your coming." "All right," responded the rat, "and I'll wire you the result." —New Jersey Enterprise.

—It is one of the unexplainable things of moral ethics how people decide so promptly as to how little rain and bad weather it takes to keep them away from prayer meeting, and how much is required to keep them away from a good show. —Stebenville Herald.

—There is a difference between intellectual Boston babies and other babies. When other babies get the colic they double up and yell like blazes. Intellectual Boston babies with the colic lie quietly on their backs and yawn after the infinite. —Brooklyn Eagle.

—The poet speaks of the "mellowing effects of Christmas." It must be confessed that a great many young men appeared in a highly "mellow" condition on that day. "Mellow" is a much milder term than "blind drunk," and should be encouraged. —Norristown Herald.

—An Irishman, lately landed, was hunting for two of his brothers, whom he had not heard from since they left the old country. One day he stood in front of a large boiler on which was painted: "Patented, 1870." On this he exclaimed: "An sure I've found him at last. 'Pat an' Ted, 1870.' That's the very year they came out. They're both bilier makers!" —Classmate.

—This is a Recherchee Affair. Recherchee Affairs are sometimes met with in Parlors and Ball-Rooms, but more generally in the Society Department of Newspapers. A Recherchee Affair is an Affair where the Society Editor is invited to the Refreshment Table. When the Society Editor is told his Room is Better than his Company, the Affair is not Recherchee. —Denver Tribune Primer.

—We are told that after the marriage of old Mr. Sicksels in New York the other day, the groom gave a dejeuner a la fourchette at the Belmont Hotel. A very imprudent act at his time of life. His friends, no doubt, reasoned with him, and endeavored to persuade him not to commit such an inexcusable rashness; but when a newly married man of eighty years makes up his mind to give a dejeuner a la fourchette, the argument in the world will not convince him that supra penna premit comes, Erin go pluribus unum, and so forth. But it does. —Norristown Herald.

The Enormous Manufacture of Matches.
Some idea of the size of the match-trees may be gained by a glance at the figures paid for stamps. The Government exacts a revenue of one cent per 100 on matches manufactured. During the year ending May, 1881, one company paid for stamps $4,500,000, this year the amount paid will be increased $50,000. There are 200 matches in a box. The tax is two cents; they are sold to the grocer for three cents, and retailed at five.

Four million five hundred thousand dollars represent 450,000,000 one-cent stamps. As each stamp represents 100 matches, the grand total manufactured is 45,000,000,000 matches, or 277,500,000 five-cent boxes. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Children's Drolleries.

Not long since a correspondent sent to a provincial paper an anecdote of which his six-year-old boy was the hero. He says: "I keep a shop and sell fancy goods. A gentleman came in to buy something. It was early, and my little boy and I were alone in the house at the time. The gentleman gave me a sovereign, and I had to go up stairs to my cash-box. Before doing so, I went into the little room next to the shop and said to the boy: 'Watch the gentleman, that he don't steal anything; and I put him on the counter. As soon as I returned, he sang out: 'Pa, he didn't steal anything—I watched him.' You may imagine what a position I was in."

Children's questions are often no less embarrassing than they are amusing, as may be instances in the story of the mercenary little boy who overheard a conversation respecting a wedding that was soon to take place. At breakfast the next morning he recalled the subject by asking the following question: "Papa, what do they want to give the bride away for? Can't they sell her?"

At a whale exhibition, a youngster is said to have asked his mamma if the whale that swallowed Jonah had as large a mouth as the one before them, why didn't Jonah walk out at one corner.

"You must think Jonah was a fool; he didn't want to walk out and get drowned," was the quick reply of a younger brother, before the mother could answer.

It is related of another infant inquirer who was looking with great interest at a foaming pan of milk, that he suddenly exclaimed: "Mamma, where do cows get their milk from?" "Where do you get your tears?" was the answer. After a thoughtful silence, in which the mention of tears had evidently recalled certain associations, he again broke out: "Mamma, do the cows have to be spanked?"

On seeing a house being whitewashed, a small boy of three wanted to know if the house was going to be shaved. A lady, when admiring the stars on a bright night in a tropical climate, was suddenly asked in the most innocent way by her little son of five years old if those were the nails that held up Heaven.

A boy who had always refused to eat oatmeal, in spite of his mother's urgings that it was a strengthening diet, suddenly surprised her one morning by eating a liberal plateful and calling for more. Upon his mother asking for an explanation, he replied: "I am bound to eat oatmeal till I am strong enough to whip Johnny Scott."

Little Freddie, when visiting a neighbor's house, was offered a piece of bread and butter, which he accepted, but without any show of gratitude. "What do you say, Freddie?" hinted the lady, expecting him to say, "Thank you." "I say it ain't cake," was the impolite response.

The father of a family, after reading from the morning paper that the cold the night before was intense, the thermometer registering many degrees below freezing-point, said: "Now, children, I suppose you are taught all about that at school. Which of you can tell me what the freezing-point is?" "The point of my nose, papa," was the prompt reply from one of the youngsters.

A gentleman somewhat advanced in life, and who was never remarkable for his good looks, asked his grandchild what he thought of him. The boy's parents were present. The youngster made no reply. "Well, why won't you tell me what you think of me?" "Cause I don't want to get licked," was the answer.

A mother once showed her child a beautiful doll, a St. John, of fine make and color. "See," she said, "he has been very good and Heaven always rewards the good by making them beautiful." "Oh," said the child, lifting its shoulders, "don't believe that, mamma. This little St. John looks very meek because he's all glued up; but if he could only move, you'd see!"

The following remark of a little girl shows an opinion of her elders the reverse of flattering. "O dear!" she exclaimed to her doll, "I do wish you would sit still. I never saw such an uneasy thing in all my life. Why don't you act like grown folks, and be still and stupid for a while?" —Chambers' Journal.

A Juggler's Victim.

The Chinaman named Ali Ling Look, whose performance with a cannon led to the death of a boy named Smythe in a Brighton music-hall Tuesday night, was yesterday brought before the magistrates and charged with causing the boy's death. The Town Clerk undertook the prosecution, and explained that the performance which brought about the melancholy event consisted in the prisoner balancing a cannon on a dagger which he put down his throat, with the end only projecting from his mouth. Whilst balanced on this projecting point, the cannon, which was loaded with powder, was fired by prisoner's wife. Some attempt was made to clear the way in front of the cannon, but when it was fired, the charge took effect on deceased, who was sitting in the gallery, twenty-two feet off, just in the line of fire, and the result was that the top of his head was completely blown off. The magistrates asked whether this was his first performance, but it appeared that a similar trick was performed on the previous night, whilst a solicitor who appeared on the prisoner's behalf stated that it had been performed in various towns at different music-halls in England and abroad without accident, and no one more deeply deplored the melancholy event than did the prisoner. The cannon was produced in court. It was made of hard wood, cased in tin or zinc, covered with a black composition, and fastened together with nails. Its length was between three and four feet, with a bore of about three inches in diameter. The dagger which prisoner partially swallowed before balancing the cannon upon it, was about two feet in length, and the hilt fitted a hole in the under part of the cannon. Evidence was given that deceased was sitting in the front row of the gallery, and that before the cannon was fired prisoner waved his arms as if to motion people away from the line of fire. When the light was applied to the cannon deceased fell back and rolled on his side. The top of his head was completely smashed, and the brains were scattered over the audience. A medical man who was called in found in the gallery a pellet, about the size of a hen's egg, made of paper, but compressed so tightly as to be as hard as wood, and this, from its appearance, had evidently been fired from the cannon and had pierced deceased's brain, as it was blackened by gunpowder smoke and covered with blood. Prisoner was ultimately remanded, the magistrate refusing to accept bail. His solicitor observed that he would venture to suggest that the occurrence was a pure accident. —London News.

Has been acquired by candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice. My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattery. We know the cause and the remedy needed; no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of chronic diseases, exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candor in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything or cure everybody, but do lay claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call and investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for yourselves; it will cost nothing as consultation is free. AGAINST POLYGAMY.

The Cannon Hall Meeting Last Night.

A Large Gathering. Good Speeches and Enthusiastic Hearers.

A public meeting was held at Cannon's hall last night to discuss the Mormon question and to adopt resolutions against polygamous marriages. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Mr. Davies, of the Congregational church, after which Mr. Sutherland, chairman of the meeting, spoke in substance as follows:

"Ladies and Gentlemen:

"We have met this evening to consider a great wrong; a wrong so great that it threatens the peace and prosperity of our country.

"Polygamy has existed in Utah, one of the Territories of the United States for over thirty years, and notwithstanding various laws have been enacted by the Congress of our Nation, for its suppression, notwithstanding suits have been instituted in our courts against Polygamists, it continues to exist, and if possible is becoming more defiant.

"The people generally, throughout our country, believing that virtue and intelligence are essential to the stability of our Republic, have recently with great unanimity raised their voices, and demanded of our legislators, that no more milk and water policy, shall be pursued, that no further dress parade warfare, shall be waged against the crime.

"A committee for Wisconsin, has planned for meetings, to be held generally throughout the State this evening. It being the anniversary of the birthday of George Washington, the first President of the United States, and it is for the purpose of giving an expression of the citizens of Wisconsin upon this question, and to bring our influence to bear upon our National Legislature, that this meeting is called this evening in compliance with their request.

"It is not my province as your chairman to discuss this question—that remains for gentlemen who have been assigned to that duty—you will permit me, however, to say, that the history of the world demonstrates, and the word of God declares, that righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people.

"Would we then, preserve and perpetuate our liberties to generations yet to come? Would we make our country an asylum for the oppressed of all climes—a political beacon that shall point the people of the world into the haven of civil and religious liberty? It becomes us as lovers of virtue, as lovers of humanity, and our God, to unite our efforts and raise our voices in demanding that the foul stain of polygamy shall at once and forever, be wiped from our National escutcheon."

After the hearty applause which followed Mr. Sutherland's remarks, the Rev. W. F. Brown, of the Presbyterian church, was called upon, and said that these meetings all over our land are meant to fix public attention on a long-neglected national disgrace, so that it may be wiped out. The object of the meeting also concerns every person in the city who respects home and home life. He affirmed that Mormon polygamy is the enemy of every true home. The most important institution we have is the home. Without the home there could be neither a lasting Republic nor a permanent Christian society. Polygamy attacks this home-life, and seeks to substitute a counterfeit. Oriental Mohammedanism speaks of the house and the harem, but it has no such word as "home," because it has not the reality; and this American Mohammedanism may use the word home, but it has no right to it. "Home" means the sacred mutual regard of husband and wife. It means the authority and affection of parents and the obedience of children. It means a family, not of weary slave-mothers and one despot father, but of one father and one mother having equal mutual rights according to the example of Eden, the consent of Christendom, and the authority of civilized statute law. The speaker further said that in regard to the neglect of proper education of the children, Mr. Charles R. Bliss, after several years residence in Utah, said the main resource of attack is to be found in education. Laws may be necessary, but laws cannot remove the dense ignorance that envelops these Mormon homes. In many communities, children of school age comprise half the population. But polygamy prefers ignorance—on that, with superstition and craft, it is built. The earnestness with which Mr. Brown spoke of the home, called out hearty applause from the audience.

John R. Bennett Esq., followed with a ten minutes speech, in which he said: The question this evening we have met to consider, calls us to reflect upon the manner of the union of the sexes and the happiness and misery resulting from it. The crowning glory of this universal distinction of sex was manifested, when God said "Let us make man in our image and after our likeness; for male and female created He them," and said, for "this cause shall a man leave father and mother and cleave unto his wife and they shall be one flesh." Had God thought it necessary to the happiness of Adam to make for him four wives, the number which Cannon, the delegate in Congress from Utah, is said to possess, or nineteen, the number which adorned the harem of Brigham Young, the great apostle of polygamy, he could easily have provided them for him. There is no country in civilized Europe that permits the practice of polygamy except Turkey, and she is fast crumbling to pieces from the inherent rottenness which pervades every department of her government. The growth of this evil has been rapid in Utah. And I was recently informed that Luther S. Dixon, late chief justice of this State, now of Denver, said that unless something was done right speedily to stay its progress, it would soon obtain control of the government in the Territories of Wyoming and New Mexico and Montana. The power of Congress is ample to suppress the evil, and I am in favor of that power being exercised without any further delay.

The Rev. Dr. Hodge, of the Baptist church, followed Mr. Bennett, and spoke of "The Bible against polygamy," and in substance said: There is, to say the least, a lurking apprehension among the people that however strongly the advanced thought of the 19th century may set itself in array against the practice of polygamy, the Mormon has yet no little support for his adherence to it in the Bible. This brings us face to face with the question—does the Bible, rightly interpreted, afford a divine warrant for polygamy? It does not. The Bible accords to the original order clearly declares the divine plan to be the union in marriage of one woman to one, and only one man. Certainly there were more ribs, Adam might have had four or twenty wives quarried from the same mine, but Infinite Wisdom decided that one was enough; and the Bible is careful to add to the record this standing law: "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife (not wives,) and they shall be one flesh." Our 21 argument rests on the obvious distinction between biblical record and biblical mutilation. That distinguished persons, who figured largely in Old Testament history, did indulge in a plurality of wives we do not deny, and neither do we deny that Abraham tried to make it appear that Sarah was only his sister, or that Jacob lied about his venison and the ring-streaked cattle; or that David committed adultery and murder; or that Solomon allowed idolatry to come in and plant itself in the hill which was before Jerusalem. Our final argument comes from the words of Christ and the letters written by his apostles. "They that shall be one flesh," said Christ, not they ten or twenty, nor even they three, but they two. Not only does the New Testament contemplate the union of one man and one woman in holy wedlock, but it gives to that union a sacredness and permanence of obligation which our modern divorce laws fail to recognize. To the plea that polygamy is a part of the religion of the Mormon and that religious freedom must not be invaded, it is sufficient to say that any religion which merits the respect of mankind will show becoming deference to the seventh commandment.

All the remarks of the evening were endorsed by enthusiastic applause which showed that the audience was in full sympathy with the speakers.

The Rev. Mr. Holmes, reported the following resolution on which, after some discussion by Rev. A. O. Curtis, Rev. D. J. Holmes, B. F. Dunwiddie, and Rev. Mr. Davies, were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, There exists in Utah and other adjacent territories a thoroughly organized and rapidly increasing community that openly and defiantly practices polygamy; and

WHEREAS, We believe polygamy to be utterly destructive of the purities of home life, which is one of the foundations of our government and our civilization; and

WHEREAS, We believe the "Edmunds bill," which has lately passed the Senate, is well adapted to extirpate polygamy, without antagonizing the religious liberty of the Mormons; therefore

Resolved, That we, the citizens of Janesville, in mass-meeting assembled, hearty support said bill, and urge its speedy adoption by the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to our senators and representatives in Congress.

Signed,
D. J. HOLMES,
JAS. SUTHERLAND,
B. F. DUNWIDDIE,
D. F. DAVIES,
OLIN A. CURTIS,
Committee.
